DETAILED ACTION

Acknowledgment

1. The amendment filed on 1/4/2006 has been entered.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: line 20 "a user" should be changed to – the user --. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 3-4 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lee (6,302,421) in view of Henriksson (5,279,180).

Lee in figures 2A-2E, discloses an improved wheeled carriage having a frame with a triangular footprint and a plurality of wheel assemblies at least one of which wheel assemblies is a caster wheel assembly. The improvement comprises a caster wheel support assembly for the caster wheel assembly. The support assembly comprises a rotatable caster pivot shaft (as shown in figure 2D), one end of which retains a rotatable wheel (14) and a second end of which extends through a bearing housing (not number, as shown in figure 2D). The caster pivot shaft has a radial index aperture (not number, as shown in figure 2D) positioned on the cylindrical surface of said caster pivot shaft. Lee also discloses an insertable retention pin (32) positioned proximate to the radial index aperture in the caster pivot shaft and alternately movable between a position removed from the aperture and a position inserted into the aperture. The retention comprises a spring (not shown, col. 9, lines 26-35) that preferences the retention pin to be removed from the aperture. Lee also discloses a mechanical linkage comprising a longitudinally moveable control cable (48), which is fixed a proximal end thereof to the retractable retention pin. The mechanical linkage operates against the force of the spring to insert the retention pin into the aperture, but fail to show a manually operable remote release mechanism.

Henriksson in figure 1, teaches an actuating device comprising a hand operated lever assembly, which can be used to actuate a brake or other wheel apparatus and can be positioned on a user accessible portion of a stroller. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the remote release mechanism of Lee with the actuating device having a hand operated lever assembly as taught by Henriksson in such a manner that a smaller or shorter operative movement need to be carried out for achieving the necessary stroke length for imparting the movement or actuation to the object which is to be actuated.

Regarding claim 4, Lee discloses the retention pin, which is positioned proximate to the aperture in the caster pivot shaft and is enclosed within a pin housing (16) attached to the bearing housing. The control cable extends through an aperture in the cylindrical pin housing to its point of connection with the retention pin.

Regarding claim 10, Lee discloses the remote release mechanism may be fixed in an actuated condition such that the retention pin is removed from the aperture without requiring retention of the user's hand on the remote release mechanism.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-4 and 10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
